

April 2, 2019

To Whom It May Concern,

I have worked with Mr. John Macomber over the past five years while he has served as an adjunct faculty member for Brandman University. He has taught several courses for the campus in the area of advanced writing and research to include upper division writing techniques required for our university degree program options in all academic areas. His experience and background in library science has made him to function as our campus expert faculty member in research and an asset to students in expanding their writing and research skills.

Mr. Macomber possesses progressive verbal and written communication skills along with a genuine love for the English language. He has been teaching students the concepts and skills that are necessary to be successful at the university level, as well as excellent preparation for career advancement and mobility. Mr. Macomber teaches practical skills such as with lifelong research and information fluency skills. Students in his courses gain working knowledge of the University's library resources as well as those within their profession.

I volunteered to write this recommendation for Mr. Macomber because I am sincerely grateful for his contributions to our campus and university community, and I am very confident that he has the intelligence, work ethic and communications skills to add value wherever he works. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions. I am happy to recommend Mr. Macomber for any available teaching position that he may be considered for and would be more than happy to provide further assistance if necessary.

Sincerely,

Susanne Eisenhart, Campus Director
Brandman University
Victorville Campus